Use of Psalms in the Daily Office

The recitation of the Psalms is central to daily worship throughout the whole of Christian Tradition.

Anglicanism at the time of the Reformation established that the entire Psalter should be read in the Daily Office once each month, according to the pattern printed with this Lectionary. Contemporary practice sometimes lessens the number of the daily psalms, which practice is permissible as long as the entire Psalter is regularly read. For any day, the psalms appointed may be reduced in number according to local circumstance. If there is only one office, the psalms may be drawn from those appointed for Morning or Evening that Day. If a two-month cycle of psalms is desired, the Morning psalms may be read in one month and the Evening psalms in the next. When there is a thirty-first day of the month, psalms from the Psalms of Ascents, Psalms 120 to 134, are used.

The Gloria Patri may be said after each psalm, or at the conclusion of all the psalms of the day. The manner of recitation of the psalms can be adapted to size of congregation and physical setting: responsive, antiphonal, or unison, and by whole or half verse. For purposes of reflective pause, half-verse recitation or musical chant, the asterisk (*) printed in each verse indicates the place where the verse divides.

Psalms proper to a feast or fast day, or to the lessons appointed for the day, may be substituted for those provided in the thirty-day cycle.

Annual Cycle of Lessons Appointed

The principle adopted at the Reformation was that “the whole of Holy Scripture (or the greatest part thereof)” should be read each year. This cycle of lessons is based on that principle.

The first lesson is always taken from the Old Testament or the Apocrypha. The Old Testament is read in its entirety once each year (except for a few passages in Numbers, Leviticus, and Judges, and the majority of Chronicles). These readings may be shortened if necessary, as long as the plain sense is not lost. The Gospels and Acts are read at Morning Prayer during the first part of the year, at Evening Prayer during the second part of the year, and are read through in their entirety twice each year. The Epistles are likewise read twice each year, except for the Revelation of Saint John, which is read only once, during the Advent season. Although less of the Apocrypha has been included than in the 1662 Book of Common Prayer, select passages have been retained, in keeping with the classic Anglican principle that “the Church doth read [these books] for example of life and instruction of manners; but yet doth it not apply them to establish any doctrine” (Article VI of the Thirty-Nine Articles).

If the year is not a leap-year, the lessons appointed for February 29 are to be combined with the lessons read on March 1.

If Morning Prayer is the principal liturgy on a Sunday, the psalms and lessons appointed for the day should be replaced with the psalm and two of the lessons from the Sunday, Holy Day and Commemorations Lectionary.

On Ash Wednesday, Maundy Thursday, Good Friday, Holy Saturday, Easter Day, Ascension Day, and Pentecost, lessons from the Sunday, Holy Day and Commemorations Lectionary are most appropriate. On other holy days, the psalm and lessons from the Sunday, Holy Day and Commemorations Lectionary may be used, if those lessons are not to be used at a celebration of the Eucharist on that day.

When a Lesson begins with a pronoun, the reader shall substitute the appropriate noun. Verses printed within parentheses are permissive additions to the appointed passages. The letter “a” after the number of a verse signifies the first part of that verse, and the letter “b” the second part.

Readings from the Apocrypha are in italics.
